The Outrage on Kentucky by Congress.

ADDRESS OF COL. T. L. JONES.

Col. Thos. L. Jones, of the Sixth Congressional District, has issued an address to his constituents, the lower portion of which we herewith copy. After citing the preliminary proceedings of Congress in reference to himself and the other Kentucky members, which have already been published in extenso in the News and are familiar to our readers, he gives the following letter from Col. Rankin, his defeated competitor, which was presented to Congress by the notorious Sam. McKee:

Covington, June 29, '67

Dear Sir: Since writing to you on the 26th, I have been in consultation with a number of our friends in relation to contesting the election of Col. T. L. Jones to Congress, and it is decided to make the fight. The Chairman of the Union Executive Committee for this Congressional District will send to you or Mr. Shellabarger at once a protest against Jones being permitted to take his seat, with a request that it be presented and referred to the proper committee at the right time. We believe that we can make such proof of his disloyalty and of the illegality of his election as will vacate the seat claimed by him. And this I have no doubt is true of at least eight out of the nine members returned from Kentucky. I shall be obliged to you if you will give the matter as to our district your personal attention, as will the entire Union party of the District for whom I write and speak. I call upon you the more readily because you have kindly tendered me the benefit of your views and suggestions in relation to the subject, and because it is a common cause in which every loyal man is interested. I shall be pleased to hear from you upon the subject whenever you can conveniently spare the time to write. This I regard as the first step toward regaining Kentucky from rebel rule, and having taken it, I am for no step backward, but am for pressing onward to the completion of the work. As matters now stand, the rebellion is an entire and complete success in Kentucky. The Union party of the nation has the power, and it is its duty to reverse this state of things, and it will be false in itself, and false to justice and right, false to the cause of freedom and of popular government, and false to the brave men who periled, and many of whom lost, their lives in vindication of right, if they fail to do it. Why shall the civil rights be conferred in the States declared to have been in rebellion, but disregarded and trampled under foot in Kentucky? No valid reason can be given for this unjust discrimination. Let us co-operate in an organized, persistent and determined effort to get Kentucky right and keep her right. If necessary let the loyal men of that State memorialize Congress to enforce the national laws and jurisdiction—to be plain, to reconstruct the State. The time has come, and we must act and meet the issue squarely. Yours, &c.,

W. S. RANKIN.

Hon. Sam. McKee.

This letter, in its personal aspect to the author, as my opponent for the seat in Congress, has surprised me, as it will no doubt surprise many who bear witness to his repeated declarations during the canvass, viz: that "the contest had been fairly and honorably conducted, and he would cheerfully submit to the verdict of the people," and as expressing a desire on the part of the gentleman and his political friends, or indicating a line of public policy to be adopted by Congress in reference to the State of Kentucky, it will startle every proud heart in the Commonwealth, and may well strike with apprehension and alarm everywhere the lovers of law and order, and the friends of constitutional liberty. I would reluctantly come to the conclusion that there is any sensible, honorable, patriotic man in the rank and file of the radical party in Kentucky who really desires the civil government of the State to be subverted and a military despotism, such as now exists in the Southern States, erected in its stead. I would not charge this against those of our fellow-citizens in general who vote and act with that party. I believe better of Kentucky manhood in the main, to whatever party allied. But can it now be denied that they who assume to be its leaders, the beaten and disappointed men, who are still looking out for place and power and the spoils of office, do desire and intend, if possible, to strike down our constitution, laws and liberties in Kentucky, and to erect upon their ruins a supreme military government; "to be plain, to reconstruct the State?" Reconstruction! Do you comprehend, fellow-citizens, the import and meaning of that word now become so harsh and terrible to the ears of freemen? Have you contemplated the social and civil havoc which has occurred, and must necessarily occur everywhere in the remorseless march of reconstruction? You may hear it in every breeze that is wafted to us from the homes of ten millions of people; you may read it in the sufferings, the groans and tears of men and women, but lately as proud and independent as sons and daughters of Kentucky. Does Kentucky deserve this great humiliation? Has she not proved her loyalty to the Union by her arms in battle, and more truly by her brave endurance of oppression and wrongs, which, except under the exigencies of the crisis, were utterly intolerable, and could not have been borne by a gallant people? Is it true that "the rebellion is an entire and complete success in Kentucky," unless, indeed, Democracy and rebellion are synonymous terms? Is there any sound of war in the land? Are not our people pursuing their industrial vocations, with abundance and general prosperity crowning their efforts; and are they not perfectly obedient to the constitution and laws, both of the State and Federal Government? Who dares desire to disturb this "even tenor of her way," this sublime prospect of a noble Commonwealth? Yet, forsooth, because there are in our midst a few discontented spirits, having lapped somewhat of the pulp of Federal office, but now rejected by their superiors, repudiated and disowned by our people, smarting with chagrin and disappointment and eagerly desiring to mount again to place and power against the will of the people among whom they live, they call upon the Union party of the nation, and propose to co-operate in an organized, persistent and determined effort to get Kentucky right and keep her right.

"Oh! is there not some chosen curse,

Some hidden thunder in the stores of heaven,

Red with unnumbered wrath, to blast the man

Who would owe his greatness to his country's ruin?"

The "first step" in this programme is to induce Congress to exclude nearly the whole Kentucky delegation, and without constitutional or legal cause, but upon the mere pretext of the vague term disloyalty. If such an outrage as reconstruction should be perpetrated upon this Commonwealth, who should be most blamed and held responsible for it? We may object to and comment with severity upon what we consider unconstitutional and unwise legislation on the part of Congress, but in this action, should it ever happen, would Congress really be so reprehensible as the men in our midst, who, by false representations, induce and instigate to? Who are now responsible for the fact, that the authority and broad seal of Kentucky have been ignored and rejected, and her Representatives temporarily excluded from the halls of Congress? Not Congress itself, but they who would deceive and misguide it. See the resolution of Mr. Logan, how utterly false its preamble "that legal and loyal voters in the several districts in the State were overawed and prevented from a true expression of their will a choice at the polls, by those who have sympathized with, or actually participated in the rebellion, and that such elections were carried by the votes of such disloyal and returned rebels." This will be news to all thoughtful and honest men in Kentucky. And where did Mr. Logan obtain this false information? He could have obtained it from none other than those at home, who desire to reconstruct the State. The election for members of Congress on the 4th of May last was admitted by all to have been the most quiet that ever transpired in the State; there was not a murmur of dissatisfaction. I venture to say that not more than 300 votes were polled in my entire district by those who had participated in the rebellion, although they, having been granted a full amnesty, had as much right to vote as any other citizens of the State. The Democratic majorities were unprecedentedly large. My own majority was 5,901 votes over my competitor, and I have yet to hear a single complaint made against it, save by those whom I have mentioned and shall mention in this communication.

Some days after the disposal of the cases of Kentucky members a paper was laid before the House by the Speaker, and referred to the Committee on Elections, titled "protest of M. M. Benton and others, against the admission of Thos. L. Jones as member of Congress from the Ninth District of Kentucky." It read as follows:

To the House of Representatives in Congress assembled:

For and in the name, and on behalf of the loyal voters of the Sixth Congressional District of Kentucky, the undersigned protest against and object to Thos. L. Jones being permitted to qualify or take a seat as member of the Fortieth Congress of the United States.

First—Because he is not lawfully eligible to such office of Representative.

Second—Because, by his speeches, public and private, he willfully and intentionally encouraged and promoted the late rebellion against the United States.

Third—Because in and during the years 1861, 1862 and 1863, and during the late rebellion against the United States, he advised, persuaded and induced divers citizens of the United States to engage, enlist and serve as soldiers in the rebel armies for the dissolution of the Union, and the overthrow of the government of the United States.

Fourth—Because he did, during the rebellion, by his money and means, furnish aid and assistance to the rebellion against the United States.

Fifth—Because he did, on divers occasions, during the late rebellion, by his speeches, public and private, rejoice and express satisfaction at the defeat of the Federal forces, and openly and publicly rejoice and express satisfaction at the success of the rebel forces.

Sixth—Because he did not receive the votes of a majority of the loyal and legally qualified voters of the District.

Seventh—Because the election by virtue of which he claims a seat as a Representative in Congress, was not organized and held in pursuance of the statute law of the State of Kentucky, in this, that a majority of the officers of the election at the various voting precincts were by the statute law relating to elections not eligible as such officers, and were appointed thereto contrary to law.

All of which the undersigned aver and believe can be abundantly sustained by proof at such times and in such manner as the House of Representatives may direct.

Covington, Ky., July 6, 1867.

M. M. Benton,
Ch. Ex. Com. 6th Con. Dist.
John S. Nixon,
V. Shinkle,
C. P. Buchanan.

These, fellow-citizens, are the charges made against me, and by which you are expected to be deprived of your representation in the Congress of the United States. I shall not pretend or condescend here to defend myself against them, and cannot believe that it will ever be necessary for me to do so anywhere, as I apprehend no man will have the audacity to attempt their vindication. I can only say that they are severally and collectively, from beginning to end, false, malicious and slanderous, and any one may ever make oath to them, will swear himself a perjured villain. Whatever may have been my natural feelings and sympathies in the late civil war, I have never been disloyal to the Constitution and laws, and the legitimate government of my country. It may yet be demonstrated whether myself or some of my accusers are more amendable to the charges made against me. I hurl defiance in the teeth of my traducers, and am ready to meet them before any tribunal on earth. But I shall content in this emergency for my individual rights as your Representative, and for your legal and constitutional privileges.

In Article 1, Section 5, the Constitution of the United States provides that "each House shall be the Judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members." What qualifications? The Constitution itself defines them in Act 1, Sec. 2, par. 2, to wit: "No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years and has been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen." These are the sole personal qualifications necessary for admission to a seat in the Lower House of Congress, and that House has no right to look for any other in the person who presents himself properly accredited from any State in this Union. It matters not whether that person have natural sympathies or none at all for his fellow man, whether he be wise or foolish, lame, halt or blind, saint or devil; indeed, now, black, or white, it would be his right to be admitted. Kentucky has the same right to send an Indian or a pardoned rebel that Massachusetts has to send a negro or a canonized Union man, and vice versa. Such are the benign provisions, the liberality and equality of our matchless Federal Constitution.

I have thus, fellow-citizens, with some prolixity, it is true, detailed to you what I thought you had a right to know, that you may be the better judge of the condition in which we have been placed as Representatives and constituents, and of the causes and pretexts which led to it, and that you may properly estimate those who instigated it, and who will be responsible for the dead alternative, should it ever come, which is here foreshadowed for the State of Kentucky. It is of but little importance to you or to me that I should be your representative in the Congress of the United States. You have hundreds of as good, perhaps better men, and if another would better subserve your interest, I would willingly resign my trust, but it is of the first and highest importance that you shall be represented, and that too, by whom you please, the man of your choice. But men are nothing, principles are everything; they are eternal. Taxation and representation must go together; the former is imposed upon you without stint, the latter should be required by you to its utmost constitutional limit. The right of representation should be supremely sacred in the heart of every American citizen. As it was the first to nerve the arms of your revolutionary sires when they struck for independence, so let it be the last you will ever surrender. Indeed, never yield it but with your lives. If you do, all will be dark, and the last bulwark in the fortress of your liberties will be torn away.

But this violence done to you and the State of Kentucky, let us hope, is only temporary; that it was induced through misrepresentation and misapprehension, and not by the willful intention of Congress. I have confidence that the investigations of the Committee on Elections will prove that the charges against the Kentucky members are of no avail, and that we shall soon be admitted to our seats. In the meantime, let us be on the alert, fully alive to the exigency upon us. Let us move forward, calmly and steadily, in our grand Democratic march of triumph, and at the approaching State election swell our glorious majorities to double intensity. Let it appear to the world that we are nearly all one way, and that we put to silence the foul aspersion that any man among us is awed from expressing his unbiased will at the polls. Let us especially, my friends, not despair of the Republic; never admit the sad prophecy, that "The star of hope shone brightest in the West;

The hope of liberty, the last, the best,
That too will set upon her darkened shore;
And hope and freedom light up earth no more."

Rather turn we to brighter skies,
Let us not believe that the bloody days of the tyrants of Athens are to return for us, but rather that the Periclean age of our Republic is yet to come. Let us at least hope that there is no parried hand among Kentucky's sons, no infuriated Eros-tratus in our midst, who would fire the temple of our liberties, that he might perpetrate a name, although of infamy. Let us still trust in the virtue and intelligence of the people, and that a returning sense of justice, moderation and wisdom will yet and soon, control the minds of those who administer our national affairs. Let us not indulge the fear that our complex but grand system of policy, State and Federal, is to prove a failure; but rather be stimulated in the hope that time will ere long assure assuage the asperities and difficulties occasioned by our late terrible strife; that amity and fraternity will return to our people; that the Union will again move on in its constitutional orbit, the States in theirs, "one of many, many in one," illustrating that beneficent governmental harmony, conceived and advanced by our fathers; and that liberty, prosperity and blessed peace may be enjoyed within all our borders.

Your obedient servant,

THOS. L. JONES

Our National Debt.

Among the many evils entailed upon the American people by the war, the creation of an enormous national debt incurred by the Government, is one that will be the longest and most severely felt, and present to the statesman, who is anxious to remove the burden from the shoulders of the people, more difficulties than any which has grown out of the late war. The people of these United States, in order to defray the interest of this debt, and carry on the Freedmen's Bureau, and support military rulers, pay a larger tax than any people on the habitable globe.

Last year the government collected 580 millions of dollars on the taxable property of the United States. In addition to this immense sum in the way of federal taxes, the people paid 250 millions for state, county and municipal purposes. England with a larger population, paid 480 millions, France 230 millions. The taxable property of France is 40 thousand millions; of England 36 thousand millions, and of the United States, according to the valuation made in 1860, only 16 thousand millions of dollars. France, having nearly three times the amount of taxable property that is owned by this country pay 190 millions of dollars less, annually, than the United States; and England, with more than twice as much, actually pays 100 millions less than we do.

Pursuing this subject farther, we will consider the cause of this enormous burden upon the people in the way of taxation. The national debt, according to the statement of Mr. McCullough, Secretary of the Treasury, is three thousand millions of dollars. The mind can scarcely conceive the stupendous magnitude of this amount! It almost defies computation. Three thousand millions! And, as above stated, the whole amount of taxable property is but 16 thousand millions; the national debt being equal to nearly one-fifth of the property in the United States. Of these three thousand millions, about twenty-two hundred millions are in Government bonds, on which we pay an annual interest of 140 millions of dollars, in coin, to the capitalists. The holders of these bonds paid to the Government, on an average, 50 cents on the dollar, but are now drawing interest at the rate of 6 per cent, in gold, on their face, thus actually realizing about 12 per cent on their investment.

While the poor man is forced to pay a tax on nearly everything he eats and wears, these princely bondholders do not pay one cent on their government bonds. Kentucky must pay taxes on her horses, her cattle and hogs; the labor of her people is taxed; but she dare not trade with the profaning hand of the tax-gatherer, the fortunes of the bondholders.

More than three hundred millions of these bonds are in the hands of the owners of National banks. These bonds are placed in the U. S. Treasury, and are drawing interest, in gold, at 6 per cent, payable semi-annually. They are furnished by Mr. McCullough with nearly an equal amount in notes, which are loaned to the people at from 6 to 12 per cent, as the condition of commerce, and the pressure of the times warrant them in their extortions. They are getting interest not only on the bonds deposited at Washington, but the bank notes which they receive in exchange for the bonds so deposited, are drawing a large interest, all of which must be settled by the people for the benefit of their moneyed aristocracy.

Now, we do not think that it is fair that these gentlemen, who are sharing these immense profits on their investments, should be exempt from paying their just portion of the national taxes, merely because their property happens to consist in bonds, while the laboring man, the farmer, the merchant and every other profession are taxed to pay to them those vast sums of interest accruing from the lumbered debt of the country. If they are unwilling that their bonds be taxed in the same proportion in which other property is made to bear the burdens of taxation, we would say to them that according to the stipulation in the bonds, we will pay you the amounts for which these bonds call in the same kind of money that you gave to the government in exchange for them, and stop the interest at once. In this arrangement, there will be nothing unconstitutional or illegal, on the contrary, the law creating these bonds, specially provided for their payment at any time the government may see fit.

By paying off the national debt in legal-tender notes, the government will furnish the circulating medium directly, and without cost to the people. We would have no further use for the national banks, which are kept up at an immense cost to the people. We would liquidate the bonds, which are drawing a yearly interest of 140 millions of dollars. We would dismiss an army of tax-gatherers, spies and informers, that now infest every neighborhood, and eat out the substance of the people.

If the amount thus saved would be appropriated towards the redemption of the legal-tender notes, provided the people would agree to be taxed a while longer for this purpose, it would require but a few years to extinguish the entire national debt, and the country be enabled once more to resume a specie basis.

Boone county gave Helm 1,300 majority, Grant 600 majority, Gallatin 500 majority, Owen 1,770 majority, and Scott 1,112 majority.

NICHOLASVILLE, Aug. 10, '67.

Dear "News":

The sun has had full sway during the past fifteen hours, and has beamed down upon humanity with more force than usual. The people of Jessamine have withstood its power without murmuring, with the exception of a long drawn sigh, and an exclamation, "Oh! that it would rain more." I believe the corn needs it now, and I hope it may rain.

Nicholasville, the shire town of Jessamine county, is a little city of fair proportions, situated some six or eight miles north of the Kentucky River, twelve miles South from Lexington, and is the terminus, now, of the Kentucky Central Railroad. Its citizens are sober, enterprising and intelligent, and during the Fair, which has been on hand for the past three days, have exhibited that old fashioned Kentucky hospitality, for which our noble old Commonwealth is so proverbial. Here, I met Monroe Brown, Esq., a gentleman, who has by his perseverance and energy, succeeded and secured, for the purpose of locking and damming Kentucky River, the sum of six hundred thousand dollars, taken as stock by the counties bordering the river. When these locks are built that river will be navigable for eight months in the year, and will give an outlet for the surplus produce of the country bordering on the river, from Whitesburg, a town twenty miles north of Pound Gap, to the balance of the world; and will furnish coal at Clay's Landing, and other points along the river, at as cheap rates as it can be had at Covington. This work will be one of greater moment to the manufacturing interests of this State, than if a railroad ran into that country.

The Fair passed off in splendid style. The crowd was large, and the decision of the judges gave great satisfaction. I was pleased with the quiet, sober and peaceful disposition of the people. The grounds were situated about two miles and a half from Nicholasville, on the Harrodsburg road, and well adapted for the purpose. No amphitheatre has as yet been erected, and to stand up, as men were compelled, made it somewhat disagreeable and tiresome. I would suggest to the Directors, and the gentlemen having control, that they build an amphitheatre near the railroad. People from the lower counties could visit Jessamine Fair then, in large crowds by an extra railroad and return home the same day.

The rings of stock were large and fine, and it was no empty honor to carry away the blue ribbon. I did not meet the President, Mr. Wilmore. He is an energetic, liberal gentleman, and honors his position.

There was a profusion of edibles and a general and standing invitation for all to come and partake of the viands prepared. I considered myself lucky in meeting Capt. Turpin and Dr. Brown, who, while I was "on the press," pressed me, seriously to accept their invitation, and as a matter of course, I did not receive the "press" reluctantly.

Among the members of the Press present, I noticed Mr. Bowman, formerly of the Danville Advocate, and Mr. Miller, of the Farmers Home Journal.

Jessamine is a strong Democratic county, and right here, I might say, and with truth, that in every community where the influences of Democracy can be felt, there will be a peaceful people, and law abiding people. No man can be a Democrat in the full sense of the word, unless he is fully persuaded to obey the laws of the country, and respect the rights of his neighbors. Peace and good will toward all men, is no less a principle with the christian, than a true Democrat, and how well it is exhibited in Jessamine, and all through this blue grass country, where a large majority of the people have been educated to Democracy. Some readers may say that it is not necessary to tell what everybody knows. True, enough, but recently a journeyman soul savor of the radical persuasion, here, has been slandering the people through that whistle too concerned, the Cincinnati Gazette, asserting that Union men were persecuted, and that the Democracy were intolerant. This reverend Habakkuk Muckelrath would doubtless give all the people of Kentucky to the auto-da-fé, had he the power, if they were not members of his church and party. But he, nor his friends have never been molested, and I will vouch for his safety while the Democracy have control.

At the Fair I met Rankin Roberts, Esq., one of the most faithful men to principle in Kentucky. He could be well termed the high-priest of Democracy in our State. His creator has put the mark of nobility on his brow, and his clear christian countenance is an index of his heart, which, like his hand is open at all times to those who love their country, and are willing to stand for it. If the world was full of such men, the millennium would not be far away.

While sojourning here, I accepted the proffered hospitality extended to me by my highly respected friend, Maj. A. McAlle. He is practicing law and is one of the ablest and most efficient members of the Jessamine bar. The Major, while a soldier, was noted for his cool bravery and firmness, and endeared himself to his friends by his vivacity and kindness. I shall not forget very soon the obstinate resistance the Major offered the enemy, with his battalion at the Pritchett surprise. He stood the brunt of the combat for near six hours.

The post-office at this place, is under the control of Mr. Denman, an accommodating and efficient officer.

The young people on Thursday night, attended a hop. It was a gay assemblage of beauty and gallantry. Love ruled at the dance, as it always will, and the giddy moments flew too fast for those who participated, or languished or loved the moments away. The music varied with the noisy "Katy-dids or didn't," out of doors, as well as with the hearts that "would or wouldn't" yield to the soft impulses of love, that fell upon the admiring assembly, like the soft rays of the moon on the still waters. To bask in the sunlight of beauty, and feel the influences which render mortals happy in a superlative degree; to look into the windows of the soul and there behold that spark, scintillating and harmonizing with one another which animates ones breast, would make a christian abnegate the old song, "I would not live always, I ask not to stay." But they danced as pretty as they were well behaved. Among the beauties who attracted most attention, for their beauty and elegance, I noticed Miss Maria L., of Nicholasville, Miss Bell S., Miss Hattie G., of Woodford, Miss M. C., of Lexington, and Miss M. C., of Evansville, Ind.

Among the gentlemen present, I met my old friend, one of the "faithful," Capt. D. E. Myers, Attorney at Law, No 279 1-2 Main street, Memphis, Tenn; also Rankin Roberts, Jr., and his brother James, both of the "faithful," and another, Prof. C. Shafter, of Frankfort.

I do not know when the dance came to a close, for weary and worn out, I retired for refreshment and found it in sleep.

Nicholasville is a halloved spot. Our friend and comrade in arms Robt. Scott, claimed it as his home and place of nativity. He was killed at Greenville, Tenn., the same day that Gen. Morgan fell. His often repeated request that he should not be forgotten, should be tall in the struggle, is fresh in my heart. I remember well a familiar expression he used around the camp-fires during the last cold winter which we passed in the mountains of Virginia; "I wonder how my good old mother is doing, and how the good people of Nicholasville are thriving." He has gone to that other and better world. May he sleep in peace.

"Sleep, Bobby, sleep, though many regret thee
Who stood by thy cold bier that day.
Soon, soon shall the kindest forget thee.
And thy name from the earth pass away.
The man thou didst love as a brother,
A friend in thy place will have gained,
Thy dog shall keep watch for another,
And thy steel by a stranger be reined."

The Kentucky table, which is conducted on the gift plan, is presided over by Mrs. James H. Blair, Mrs. W. L. Hill, and Miss Pendleton, assisted by Messdames Hayes and C. D. Hill, and the Misses Blair, Gennett, Harvey and Mayo.

Among the many beautiful articles which adorn this table, is a wreath of Autumnal leaves, gathered from Hollywood, and arranged in an elegant ornamental design. "Virginia—Lost Cause," is the title of a picture which will attract the attention of every beholder. It represents a female face, beautiful and classic; her dark hair floats in disheveled masses from her shoulders; her eyes, wild and troubled, are fixed upon a stormy, clouded sky, through whose almost cinerian darkness are caught faint glimpses of the rising moon. The female is clinging to a tombstone, and the expression of the face is one of despair beyond the reach of hope.

The Soldier's Daughter, a blue-eyed sunny-haired child, is a very pretty little picture, and affords a pleasant contrast in its smiles to the mournful painting from which we have just turned.

The beautiful painting above described, we learn, are the offerings of the gifted and accomplished Miss Alice Duncan, Principal of the Harrison County Male and Female Academy, at Cynthiana. They are the first fruits of a highly educated intellect—unaided by the lessons of the artist's studio. We trust that one so richly endowed by nature will feel encouraged in the cultivation of her taste in the fine arts, and gratify the public with the creation of her more practiced pencil.

The Cincinnati Commercial says that the confederates will never be permitted to vote again in this State, and as we have been told, intends to have this country reconstructed. All right. Many timid people in Kentucky refused to approach the polls because they feared something serious, that they knew not of, would overtake them. It reminds us very much of an old negro, who espied a squad of wildducks, near his master's house, and rushing into the house took down the old gun to shoot them, when his master informed him that it had no lock and would not go off. The old slave replied: "Master you keep yourself to yourself, ducks don't know dat."

The difficulty between President Johnson and Mr. Stanton proves very clearly that the Commercial's gun has got no lock.

BLUE GRASS FARM

FOR SALE.

THE Farm on which I now reside is for sale. It is situated four miles south of Cynthiana, half a mile from Fair Station, on the K. C. R. R. at which point there is a post office, express office, depot, saw mill and two excellent grist mills that manufacture the best quality of flour and meal. It is within 2 hours ride of Cincinnati and 1 1/2 of Lexington. It contains about 15 acres, one hundred acres well timbered. The remainder cleared and in the highest state of cultivation. The fencing all in good order. The improvements consist of a comfortable dwelling, partly frame and partly log, weatherboarded and plastered and painted, containing six rooms, cook-house, and all necessary out buildings, including two large stables, (with lots for feed) large enough to hold 60 and feed 75 mules at a time which can be done without going out of doors, as there is large wide feed rooms extending the whole length of the stables, in which there is a cutting box run by horse power, with capacity and strength enough to cut a large quantity of provender in a short time. There is also a young orchard of select fruit of various kind now bearing. The farm is supplied with abundance of pure water for all purposes, as there is upon it a number of never failing springs (some of them near the dwelling) and south lying which runs along one side of it. Any one wishing to purchase such a farm, would do well to call and examine for themselves, as the place will be sold for a reasonable price, the payments made easy and if desired a part of the money can be run a considerable length of time at moderate interest.

I also desire to sell 100 acres of land which lies in Lewis county, Missouri. Said land is situated about 12 miles from F. M. on the road leading from there to Monticello, and about 16 miles from the Mississippi river, about one half of it timbered land, the timber excellent, the balance prairie of good quality, a little rolling and dry, is in good neighborhood, and is surrounded by old settled and finely improved farms. There is a large handsome 3 1/2 story brick and a school house in sight of the land. Also a small village and post office near by. Price reasonable, payments easy and made to suit the ability and convenience of purchasers. For further particulars call on

We are under obligations to J. Renaker, Jr., for late St. Louis papers.

A commencement has been made on Pleasant street, in pavements. Let us recommend that the improvement should not stop.

E. N. Cushing & Co., have purchased a lot on Walnut street, next to the railroad, from C. A. Webster, for which he paid $1,200. We understand that he will improve it immediately.

The jail has nearly come to a completion. It should have been finished by this time. It is to be hoped that the next generation will make one sufficiently large for all purposes.

Mr. J. M. Smith, the proprietor of the Livery Stable on Pleasant street, authorizes us to say that the report that he had a difficulty with one Wilhite on Walnut street, is false.

There will be a grand picnic given in Mr. Joseph Shawhan's woodland pasture on next Saturday. Every body is respectfully invited to attend. Good music will be in attendance.

The weather hereabouts has become intensely hot, without any variations whatever. Personally, we don't think the heat is intense enough, but for the sake of our friends and subscribers, that all would feel better, if the weather would cool off and rain about three or four days.

Court day was generally and numerously attended in Cynthiana last Monday. People come to Cynthiana now-a-days to buy goods, &c., because everything is cheaper here than elsewhere.

Mr. Henry Schurz started for Europe last Thursday, from this city. We hope he will be able to induce all earnest, industrious, intelligent and worthy Germans to emigrate to this country. That class of people shall make welcome.

On last Saturday morning Mr. Sam. Howe's residence in Pendleton county, was entirely destroyed by fire. Loss some $1,200. It was supposed to be the work of a contraband vagabondizing through that country.

DEMOREST'S MONTHLY.—The September number of this favorite parlor periodical is fully equal to any of these which have preceded it. The illustrations are varied, and brilliant as ever, and there is a tone of freshness and originality about the entire contents which contrasts remarkably with other parlor publications. We do not wonder ladies prize it; to them it is full of useful and interesting reading and information, besides containing many valuable specialties, in the way of patterns, etc., which can be got from no other source. Three dollars per annum, with a premium. Address, W. Jennings Demorest, 473 Broadway, N. Y.

Mr. Stanton, Secretary of War has knocked under and President Johnson has triumphed. Farewell Mr. Stanton, you can go back to Pennsylvania and raise drum-head cabbage for a living. Your devotion to your party instead of country, has brought you to your present condition. In the language of the New York Times: "this is a national calamity," we hope so far as the rads are concerned, because Grant, who we understand is the war secretary new, is more for the country and enforcement of the laws, than party; and besides that, he has long since learned to observe his oath, and will be certain to obey orders. We hope the country will be benefitted by the change, we are certain that it cannot be injured.

The returns from the different portions of the State indicate a large majority for the Democracy. It is believed by some that Helm will receive at least sixty thousand. We hope to be able to lay the result before our readers next week.

WHOLESALE GROCERY!

WE are prepared to furnish Jobbers with Sugar, Tea and Coffee, in fact, everything in the grocery line.

ATCincinnati Prices!!!!

Freight and Drayage added.

We would call the attention of Farmers and others, who are in the habit of purchasing their goods at the river, to our stock and prices. We think we can make it to their interest to lay in their supplies in this market. We think we understand our business; we buy strictly for cash and have adopted the motto of short profits and quick sales on a cash base.
